The cast consists of four retired opera singers, living in a musicians-only retirement residence: two male and two female.

The story of this gentle and poignant amusement - without giving too much away - involves our foursome living among their memories, coping with life's inconveniences, operating on an NSP (No Self Pity) philosophy, and handling a new arrival: an event involving some interesting cats and pigeons.

No singing ability is required of the actors.

The auditions will consist of cold readings from the script, some workshop exercises, etc.
No prepared piece is required

Because the play goes up on September 22, any potential cast members MUST be largely available for rehearsal during the summer months and will be asked on the audition sheet, as a courtesy to other members of the ensemble, to list ALL dates during July and August when they can not be available. There will be more information at the auditions about the rehearsal dates and process.

We are looking for four actors who will enjoy working to form a team unit that will deliver together a finished piece of enjoyable excellent drama.
