Jeff Biggar proudly hails from Cobourg and is honoured to be making his Northumberland Players debut as Sparky in Forever Plaid. Holding degrees in classical guitar performance and music education from McGill University, Jeff has toured Australia, New Zealand and the Caribbean as a cruise ship soloist, and can be found performing regularly in the Toronto area. No stranger to musical theatre, Jeff's previous productions include Little Shop of Horrors, H.M.S Pinafore, Hair, Chess and The Mikado. Jeff currently teaches music at Trinity College School.

Ian Everdell's family ties to Port Hope meant he spent lots of time in the area as a kid, and he has great memories of summer programs with the Capitol Kids and Ganaraska Youth Theatre. Forever Plaid has been on Ian's bucket list of shows to be in for a long time, and after moving to Port Hope last summer and seeing that it was going up this season, he couldn't wait to audition! When he's not at rehearsals, you can find him at the curling rink, playing with his two year-old son, Ben, building and fixing websites, or working on a home reno project.

Craig Martin is very proud and excited to be a part of this production of Forever Plaid. Craig has joined the Northumberland Players for several musicals over the past seven years, including Les Miserables and The Secret Garden. He is thrilled to be back onstage, especially while singing some of his favourite music.

Brad Halls is very excited to be able to return to Cobourg to accompany this production of Forever Plaid. In his 35 years in Cobourg, Brad was involved in more than twenty Northumberland Players productions as pianist, actor, producer and director, as well as being the producer and principal performer in his “Words and Music” concert series which presented over 200 individual concerts over its 28-year run at Cobourg’s Victoria Hall. Now living in Fergus, Ontario, Brad continues to play jazz at Manhattans, a popular Guelph nightspot, and is a singer with, and President of The Guelph Chamber Choir.
